Infrastructure

The law collection is housed on the second floor with generous provision of reading space, the Library has a fully computerised catalogue and a Law collection comprising of Law reporters, journals, statutes, A.I.R's, SCC, periodicals- not only related to the specific subject but also Journals and magazines to keep our students continuously updated about the world around them. Library staff are always willing to assist with enquires and provide you with training in the best use of library resources.

Moot Court

The Moot court is basically an activity that is followed for enhancing the presentation and argument skills of the students. It help the students to equip themselves to the standards of the society. To participate actively one should have the confidence and should be generalist i.e., one should analyse the facts of the case in the general point of view in regard to the subject of the case and learn to apply the facts of the case. Students are expected to be a specialist in Law dealing in that particular subject and be thorough with the latest case Law and interpretation by the Supreme Court and the High Courts to get a better grip over the case.

In a Moot Court a hypothetical case is given to the students and they are allowed to argue the given case. Moot court helps the students of Law in many ways since it is a sort of practical legal training which help to build analytical reasoning, legal aptitude, team building skills and above all make them responsive.

Counselling

The counselling center helps all our students in the holistic development of their personality by imparting right values and attitudes towards once self and the society at large. It constantly monitors educational performance, identifies problems if any, facilitates remedial systems to overcome inadequate motivational factors and helps to improve self esteem and confidence. Student can approach the counsellor for solace and any problems. This center also concentrates on students whose performance is not satisfactory in their studies

Legal Aid Clinic

The mission of the clinic is to teach students effective advocacy skills, professional ethics and the effect of legal institutions on the poor; to examine and apply legal theory while serving as advocates for people typically denied access to justice and to reform legal education and the Legal system to be more responsive to the interest of the poor. Students assume responsibility under the guidance of the full time clinical faculty for all aspects of work. The clinic seeks to acquaint students with the problems of professional responsibility and with the special issues of low income claims and other disadvantage groups. Students are encouraged to identify legal remedies for recurrent problems through new legislation, improvements in Government services and benefits, assisting community based groups and Bar associations in their reform efforts, test cases and other types of Law Reform litigation.

Facilities

Legal Literacy Programmes

Legal literacy means making people aware of their rights- the rights that are guaranteed to them, by the constitution of their own creation. The oppressed and ignorant masses are required to be thought of what their rights are, how those rights relate them. It helps in eliminating inequality and discrimination. Lack of legal literacy makes the ignorant masses vulnerable to deception, deprivation and exploitation of all sorts. The significant difference between "literacy and legal literacy" is that if a person is just a literate he/she may say at best 'this is mine'. But if that person is a "legal literate" he/she may say with assertion this is rightfully mine.

This transition from literacy to legal literacy from simply mine to rightfully mine is a big quantum leap forward that instantly generates power and confidence to fight oppression. It strengthens the rule of Law. It Defines the democracy. It helps in redeeming the goals of justice-social economical and political. This indeed is the magic of legal literacy

Yoga & Meditation

"The light of a lamp does not flicker in a windless place", i.e. the simile which describes the yogi of one pointed mind who meditates upon the Atman. A spiritual aspirant, trying to protect the flame that is, the mind, by controlling the five senses symbolised as five hands.

If you meditate on an ideal you will acquire it's nature. If you think of God day and night, you will acquire the nature of God. A salt doll went into the ocean to measure its depth. It became one with the ocean, what is the goal of books or scriptures? The attainment of God."

Martin Mayer in his book The Lawyer describes Law School as the crown jewel of the educational system, in part because Law School is the last generalist professional degree. Today, law is a field of study that offers the recipient a wide range of career options, each requiring different skills but also possessing common characteristics. The options are endless in terms of practice areas and work environments. Lawyers might find themselves arresting a ship or zoning a playground, working independently in their home or with others in high rise corporate offices. Lawyers can practice law by helping clients plan to avoid problems, by solving problems. Once they develop, by representing and counselling businesses in a particular industry, by representing individuals sharing a common status or problems and by appearing (or not appearing) in court.

Law school teaches you to open your mind and think differently. This type of training is valuable in any career. Today, law is the pathway to financial rewards, intellectual stimulation, prestige, family influence, social change & career flexibility
